Upland protest draws 25 Hispanic rights group raps city policies, brutality

By DINAH ROSE
Staff Writer

A Hispanic rights group Thursday accused Upland of failing to follow federal affirmative action guidelines.

Twenty-five members of Congreso para Pueblos Unidos (Congress for United Communities) demonstrated in front of City Hall, carrying handmade placards charging the Police Department with intimidation and unfair promotion standards.

The demonstration attracted little community attention. The only bystanders were members of the new media and a Police Department crew which filmed the proceedings.

Carlos Juarez, an attorney for Inland County Legal Services and CPU member, said the group was planning to ask for an investigation by the grand jury in an effort to use Upland as a "test case" regarding affirmative action violations.

Armando Navarro, CPU president, said the city was not alone in its failure to hire minority and female employees.

He said it is a national problem, and the organization hopes to "give warning to other cities" by the actions taken against Upland.

The group's major concern was the alleged lack of compliance with federal and state requirements for affirmative action policies.

Although such a policy was adopted by the city in 1976, Navarro said there was a need to ensure "the practice is there — not just the theory."

Other charges were leveled more directly at the Police Department. Spokeswoman Sally Rivera - Nittler said department administration was inconsistent in disciplinary procedures and means of promotion, specifically in regard to promotion of Hispanic officers.

The group also said a police brutality case was pending. The case allegedly involves a 17-year-old youth whose nose was broken while he was restrained by handcuffs.

In addition to the grand jury investigation, CPU members asked for the formation of an advisory agency to deal with complaints pertaining to fair employment practice. They also threatened to pressure legislators to keep the city from receiving federal funds.

The group said they first began receiving complaints from Upland city employees and residents in fall 1979.

Navarro met with city officials in mid-March to discuss possible tightening of the affirmative action policy and contacted the city for a second meeting May 1.

He did not appear at the second meeting, attended by Upland Mayor John McCarthy, Police Chief Coy Estes and City Manager Lee Travers. Instead, five CPU members presented the city officials with a three-page list of charges.

Rivera-Nittler, a member of the task force which attended the meeting, said the city officials "essentially refused to acknowledge the complaints," and "lack of cooperation" triggered Thursday's protest.

Travers, not present at the demonstration, said he had been expecting a discussion of affirmative action policy at the meeting, and told the CPU members that he would need additional time to look over and respond to the charges.

The City Council was informed of the allegations in executive session Monday night, and Chief Estes drafted a formal response available to the group Thursday addressing each of the charges.

Arnold Uriaga, president of the local CPU chapter, called for the resignation of Travers, saying that as city manager he is directly responsible for the lack of compliance with affirmative action policies.

"I categorically deny all of their allegations," Travers said. "We are not a large city and there is not a large turnover of people, but I would say we diligently pursue our (affirmative action) policy."

The policy, written in 1976, set a five-year goal of meeting affirmative action guidelines by balancing representation of ethnic and female workers throughout the city employees.

Law school scholarships offered by bar group

The San Bernardino County Bar Association has announced that applications are now being accepted from law students for the John Lewis King Memorial Scholarships.

These scholarships have been established to provide two $1,000 awards to students who have substantial contact with San Bernardino County, and who are currently attending an accredited California law school.

Interested applicants should write to the San Bernardino County Bar Association office, 364 N. Arrowhead Ave., San Bernardino, Calif. 92401, before July 15, 1980.

Summer jobs available

The Chino Recreation and Parks Department is now accepting applications for assistant managers, senior lifeguards, lifeguards and junior lifeguards for the summer class and open swim program.

Applicants will be required to complete practical, written and oral interviews.

Upland police chief responds to allegations

By DINAH ROSE
Staff Writer

Members of an Hispanic rights group last week charged the Upland Police Department with a series of allegations ranging from brutality to intimidation of officers by their superiors.

Police Chief Coy Estes responded to those charges Thursday, calling many of them "unfounded" or "not supported."

"The list of allegations they brought to us is distorted, full of incomplete statements," he said. "The total picture is not told."

Members of the Congreso para Pueblos Unidos (Congress for United Communities) said the police department administration had a history of harassing officers, particularly minority officers, resulting in a high turnover rate of personnel.

Estes said that since his installation as chief, August 1976, the department has lost 27 officers, and six civilian personnel.

Of those, he said reasons included terminations, voluntary resignations and termination due to lack of ability to meet probationary requirements.

The department conducted a survey of seven West End police departments and the rate of turnover during the same time span. Upland fell roughly mid-range for departments of its size, with attrition for other areas ranging from 21 to 138.

To charges that the department arbitrarily extended officers' probationary periods, Estes said five employees had been given an additional six months' probation during his tenure as chief.

Reasons for the disciplinary measure included, for some of the officers, off-duty barroom altercation, abusive treatment of a suspect, error in judgment leading to three civil suits against the city, and improper interrogation techniques.

One of the officers requested an extension to find a residence within the 30-minute response time required by the department.

It was also alleged that promotions within the department were not conducted on a consistent basis, and minority officers not given the same opportunities as others.

Estes said promotions were based on a written exam, oral exam and rating by superiors.

CPU members said officers with bilingual skills should be given additional compensation. Estes said as there was no compensation given to employees with other useful skills, such as piloting experience, photography or rating as a firearms expert, it would be inconsistent to compensate bilingual officers.

The allegations included a charge that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is currently researching a question of bookmaking within the department. Estes said that investigation had been terminated, as no connection was found between Upland police and the charges.

He added that San Bernardino County District Attorney James Cramer had been contacted and was currently conducting an investigation of CPU charges of police brutality, and the results of that investigation would be available soon.

Estes called a meeting with all police personnel the day following the presentation of CPU charges. He said CPU statements calling the meeting an "intimidation tactic" geared to preventing officers from discussing police business was false.

"They said the meeting was to determine 'where the leak' was," he said. "But the officers are free to speak as long as they say the truth. The facts printed in the allegations are not truth."

"In the memo I sent out about that meeting, it said, 'the police department intends to begin an internal investigation regarding statements made and information furnished to CPU regarding their allegations."

"If (the investigation) determines any member of the police department has furnished information which is false, appropriate action will be taken."

Estes added that it was an officer's responsibility to be trustworthy, and he wanted to insure the information disseminated was factual.

Entries sought for annual All States Picnic parade

You don't need to be a queen or princess to represent your home state at this year's All States Picnic July 4.

Supporters of All States Picnic, Inc. are now accepting parade entries and are seeking persons to serve as hosts at the picnic registration areas.

Parade entry deadline is June 15 but persons interested in being a host should contact Margene Chrisman or Teri Dimon at 985-1227 weekdays or 986-9456 evenings and weekends as soon as possible. They are co-chairmen of Friends of Jasper (Jasper is an ant, the picnic mascot), a picnic support group.

Traditionally, the picnic has used only state queens and princesses as hostesses but it has been too difficult in recent years to get enough volunteers to fill those duties. Chrisman said. Queens had to be between 15 and 21 years old and princesses had to be between 13 and 15 years old.

This year, she said, you don't have to be a queen or princess to represent your home state at the picnic; persons of either sex and any age will be permitted. "Our main concern now is just getting someone native to the states," she said.

The All States Picnic is a local tradition dating back to 1916 and billed in a 1941 "Ripley's Believe It or Not" as the longest picnic table in the world.

It was a chance for Ontario residents from different states to meet and picnic with other residents native to the same state.

It was originally held in John Galvin Park but was moved, in 1939, to Euclid Avenue's parkway, where the tables, linked end-to-end, form the picnic table.

An accompanying parade is also staged on Euclid Avenue.

This year's theme, according to Chrisman, is dedicated to the American hostages in Iran. The theme is "Coming Home."

Cabrillo principal's reassignment protested

Upland School District trustees moved Tuesday to reassign Cabrillo School Principal Oliver Soderberg to the classroom next year, despite vocal support on his behalf by at least 70 parents, staff members and students.

The board was split 3-2 on the controversial decision. No reason for the change was given.

Many of Soderberg's supporters were allowed into the board's executive session to protest the trustee's consideration and eventual final decision.

Soderberg has served as principal of the school for nine years.

Teacher Penny Scheer read a statement on behalf of the staff, asking board members to visit the school and talk to teachers and students about improvements and projects under way.

"They should come and see the sense of cohesiveness of the staff," she said. "We want them to really look at the school, and ask for our input."

She said they had not heard of the board's impending decision until Monday morning, and had not had the opportunity to organize a strong movement.

Although she said the group was in support of Soderberg, the point they objected to most was the lack of communication between the district and the employees.

Superintendent George Renworth said the position would probably be opened to applicants soon, but no decision had been made yet.

After deliberating in executive session for more than an hour, the board voted on the reassignment. Trustees Dina Hunter, Barry Brandt and Rick Minnis voted in favor of Soderberg's assignment to teacher; and Dale Andersen and Robert Ellis voted against.

Included in the group supporting Soderberg were about 40 parents and 25 staff members from the school.

Soderberg did not attend Tuesday's meeting, and when contacted this morning said he had no comment to make on the decision.

Renworth and the board members received phone calls and letters from concerned parents prior to the meeting. When asked why the reasons for the reassignment were not made public, they said Soderberg had not requested the rationale be discussed in open session, and they abstained from discussing the matter in respect of his wishes.

Firemen practice

A training fire in Upland Monday morning burned an abandoned house at 177 N. Euclid Ave. to the ground. Upland firemen used the opportunity to practice firefighting techniques and give reserve firemen experience. Firemen first set several small fires in the house and videotaped burn patterns and extinguishing the fires. Shortly afterwards, the house was doused with a mixture of diesel fuel and gasoline and flames were tossed to get the fire going. A house next to the abandoned house was continually sprayed with water to keep it from burning during the exercise.

Shelter needed for battered women

By KAREN ALTMAN
Staff Writer

A woman who is battered by her mate has no place to go in the West End.

If she calls House of Ruth, the local hotline for battered women, the most volunteers can do is refer her to a social service agency or try to place her in an out-of-town shelter.

"You have a woman with nowhere to go. So you start calling shelters in Colton, Riverside, Long Beach and maybe Los Angeles. Maybe you don't find any place at all," said Barbara Johnson, House of Ruth president.

Even if space is available at a shelter, it often is 40 or more miles away, said Mrs. Johnson. "If the woman doesn't have transportation, then what do you do?"

The need for a local shelter was the main topic at a meeting this week of the Friends of House of Ruth in Claremont.

About 20 persons attended the meeting, some representing West End service groups and organizations. Several signed up for volunteer duties.

Mrs. Johnson, a social services supervisor at the Department of Public Social Services in Ontario, told of her search for a suitable shelter for abused women and their children in the Pomona Valley.

"I've been trying to contact a couple of people who have been advertising places for lease with an option to buy. I'm also looking for anyone who wants to outright donate a place for a tax shelter," she said.

Approximately $75,000 is needed to operate a 10-bed facility for one year, according to Mrs. Johnson. "If we can lease a place with an option to buy, we'll be in a better position to ask for money from groups or organizations."

Based in Claremont, House of Ruth was founded three years ago by psychologist Kathleen Hofeller. A hotline (988-5559, 24 hours a day) was established 16 months ago.

The non-profit organization has raised about $6,000 to date, said Mrs. Johnson. Telephone bills for the hotline are at least $100 a month.

The need is evident for a local shelter, say House of Ruth officials, because the hotline averages 100 calls per month. The closest shelter is Option House in Colton, 25 miles away.

If the West End is going to get a shelter, the money will have to come from local people, said Dr. Hofeller, who also spoke at the meeting.

"State and federal money is very tight right now," she said. "Even if we are able to obtain a grant, often communities must put up matching funds."

Dr. Hofeller said House of Ruth faces an "uphill battle" to gather funds for a shelter.

"We are in a recession. We're going to have tough economic times. People pull in, and the first place is donations to charities. They also limit how much they get involved."

Compounding the problem is the sociological fact that when unemployment rises, so does domestic violence, said Dr. Hofeller. "Men are out of work. They're angry and at home. Women get beaten."

According to the National Institute of Mental Health, chronic abuse is seen in 25 to 30 percent of all American homes, said Dr. Hofeller. There is some level of violence in nearly half of all American homes.

"It's really kind of shocking and amazing so little has been done in this area," she said. "We're reluctant to admit domestic violence even happens. It's a very well-hidden crime."

Wife-beating often spills over to child abuse. Children who are not physically beaten are mentally abused, having nightmares or becoming withdrawn or violent themselves.

"Fifty percent of the men who beat their wives were abused themselves or witnessed abuse," said Dr. Hofeller.

It will be impossible to reduce violence in society without reducing violence in the home, said the Claremont resident. "Domestic violence involves us all. (The sociologist) Malinowski said, 'Violence, like charity, begins at home.'"

Creativity seminar will be given

A one day workshop for teachers, "Creativity: Problem Solving and Serendipitous Awareness" will be given at the Newporter Inn at Newport Beach on May 17 by Syd Brown consultant in Art and MGM and Joan Hanor, M.G.M. Specialist Ontario-Montclair School District.

The workshop will provide personal application of creative approaches at home and in the classroom. While primarily for teachers, activities are designed to allow anyone fuller use of their own creative energy.

Serendipitous Awareness according to Brown is the state of mind that allows you to pay attention to the events that happen with an eye for the "lucky" or "interesting," resulting in a greater ability to say "Wow! Look at that..." or "Hey! What if..."

Joan Hanor is a graduate of Massachusetts College of Art and has applied her art background and her skills in education of the mentally gifted as a visiting lecturer at classes of University of California, Riverside, and Claremont Graduate School, and she was also master teacher in the La Verne University teachers' program.

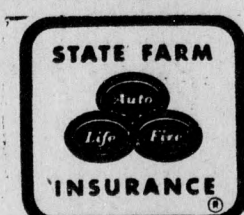

Brown has done extensive work with problem solving and creativity and was recently recognized by being invited by the California Department of Education to present the topic "Criteria for Identifying the Gifted and Talented in the Visual and Performing Arts" at a four-state consortium conference. Recent publications include two filmstrips, "Creativity" and "Recognizing Higher Thinking Skills." Both filmstrips are in current use throughout the nation.

Both presenters have given numerous workshops at the California Association for the Gifted conferences, the individualized instruction conferences, and California Art Education conferences.

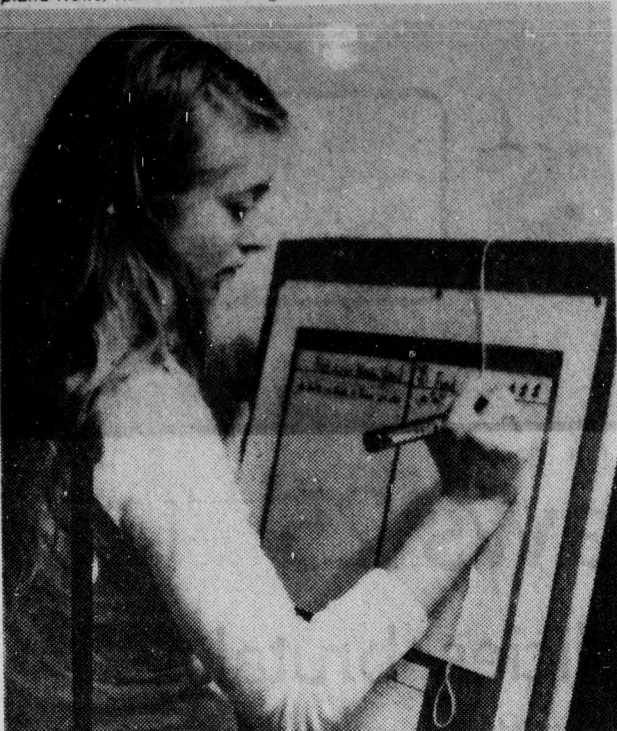

Practical "Monday morning" projects that increase the fluency ideas, originality, and ways to think analytically and at the same time more creatively are the goals of the workshop. A fee of $65 will be charged. Enrollment will be limited to 40. College credit is available for an additional fee. Contact Hanor Brown, P.O. Box 672, Claremont, 91711.

Auxiliary will present awards to volunteers

Volunteer awards and service recognition will be given on May 19 at the annual meeting of the San Antonio Community Hospital Auxiliary.

Mrs. Robert Williamson, retiring president, will conduct the session in Aita Auditorium at the hospital. The luncheon begins at noon.

Gifts to the hospital will be made and officers for 1980-81 will be installed by Mrs. Joseph Schechter, auxiliary past president.

A musical highlight for the day will be the voice of Jackie Harper, daughter of Mrs. Gene Harper and granddaughter of Mrs. Maurice Harper, both active auxiliary members.

Miss Harper played the roles of Laurie in "Oklahoma" and the mother in "Amahl and the Night Visitors" while attending Chaffey College. She recently graduated with a degree in performing arts from USC, where she studied with Dr. Michael Sells and appeared in the USC Opera Workshop production of "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream."

For three years, Miss Harper sang leading roles with the "Musical Americans" as the group traveled to Europe, Russia, Japan, South America and Hawaii. She teaches voice at her home and serves as a long-term substitute teacher in the music department of Chaffey College.

Miss Harper's accompanist will be Elinor K. Wilding.

Supervisors grapple with name

What's in a name?
A great deal if the name means dropping the word "environmental," according to the county board of supervisors.

On Monday, supervisors grappled for the second time on a name for the newly consolidated agency known as, at least temporarily, the public works-environmental improvement agency.

The board suggested on April 7 the agency name — a marriage of the public works and environmental improvement agencies — was too cumbersome.

But a majority of the board Monday rejected a recommendation by John Bernard — administrator of the public works agency and head of the new consolidated agency — to drop the second half of the name, making it simply the public works agency.

The board told Bernard to come back April 21 with another suggestion for the name.

Bernard noted that by using public works agency as the title, the county could continue using some of the existing signs and stationery.

He added that other counties have public works agencies including the functions of the county's merged agency.

Supervisor Dennis Hansberger said, "I think there is substantial sentiment for recognizing the importance of the environment which we inhabit."

He said "public works" has a connotation of government-sponsored projects, while much of the work on the agency concentrates on private development.

Supervisor Robert Townsend agreed that "environment" should be retained in the agency name, but added, "I don't know how."

Supervisor Bob Hammock said it was important that the public not believe the emphasis on environmental concerns has been "watered down."

Supervisor Cal McElwain supported Bernard's choice, noting the potential for saving money and saying environmental needs would be met in practice, if not in title.

Chairman James Mayfield said the word "environmental" scares some residents into thinking they cannot get project approval.

Referring to the word, he added, "People will think it has something to do with saving the bald eagle."

As for new suggestions, Hansberger noted Orange County has an environmental management agency with much the same duties as the county's consolidated agency.

Mayfield suggested the agency be called the public works and zoning agency, because "everybody knows what zoning is."

The problem with that name, Hansberger responded, the county's new streamlined planning process is eliminating traditional zoning.

Local unemployment claims reported rising

By BRUCE THORNTON
Staff Writer

More unemployment claims were filed in March at the state Employment Development Department office in Ontario than had been filed "in a long time — maybe two or three years."

This report came from Glenn Rankin, manager of the Ontario office now located at 1511 E. Holt Blvd.

There was a slight improvement in the jobs picture in April, Rankin said, but it appeared to be only a normal change.

Citing figures, Rankin noted that in March there were 14,565 weeks claimed for unemployment, compared to 13,900 in April.

New claims for unemployment insurance, he said, totaled 2,976 in March and 2,614 in April.

Normally, the EDD official said, there is a decline in new claims and weeks claimed from March to April. There are several reasons for this, he said, one of which is the weather.

For example, Rankin pointed out, last March some of the claims could have been a result of the rain in such jobs as construction, while there was little or no rain in April.

Illustrating the increase in unemployment this year as compared to last, Rankin said, weeks claimed in March 1979 amounted to 11,327 and new claims totaled 2,316.

In April 1979, weeks claimed were 10,701 and new claims 2,157.

How are "weeks claimed" tabulated?

Rankin explained, "A person comes in and files a claim. The first week is a waiting period during which he receives no compensation. He is paid unemployment insurance after the first week until he gets a job or until his compensation runs out in 26 weeks."

"For computing purposes, we tabulate weeks claimed as both the waiting period and the weeks the applicant receives payment."

The EDD official noted that on an unemployment insurance claim there is only one waiting period week per year, no matter how many times the worker is unemployed.

Again, he cited a construction worker as an example. Such a worker may be out of work several times during the year but only has to serve one week waiting period. At the same time, however, he may draw unemployment insurance only for the current maximum of 26 weeks.

Strong economic growth forecast for area in 1980

The economy of the San Bernardino-Riverside counties area, one of the fastest growing regions in California, will reach $20 billion in 1980, despite a lull in the construction industry, a forecast says.

The prediction is in an economic report released by the Bank of America.

The report also said that the area's population will grow at twice the rate of the state as a whole and that more than 550,000 people will have jobs in the two-county region.

In outlining the area's economic prospects, the bank's senior vice president, William H. Baughn, said, "The industrial diversity of the Riverside-San Bernardino area, its attractiveness as a place to live and numerous recreational opportunities should insure its rapid economic growth this year and in the decade ahead."

"Our projections indicate that by year-end 1980, the population of the area will approach 1.5 million people, increasing 3.3 percent annually," Baughn said.

"Most of this growth will be caused by immigration which is expected to grow by more than 25,000 people a year. As a result, population in the Riverside-San Bernardino area will rise at twice the rate of California as a whole."

According to Baughn, who is in charge of the bank's operations in the San Diego-Eastern California Region which includes Riverside and San Bernardino counties, this growth will result in an annual increase of approximately 5 percent in the labor force.

"While the rapidly expanding economy will produce jobs in excess of that rate," Baughn pointed out, "it will be slower for the area in 1980 and the state as a whole. These jobs will be created primarily in the expanding recreational services industry."

By the end of 1980, he said, 550,000 people will be employed — 325,000 in San Bernardino County and 225,000 in Riverside County.

Nonetheless, he added, unemployment should increase to slightly below the estimated 1980 state rate of 8 percent.

Baughn projected the bulk of new employment will be in the service, trade and manufacturing sectors, fastest growing of which will be the service industry.

"The demand for all types of supporting services, including health, education and finance, will surpass state averages in 1980," the banker said.

"Retail trade is another rapidly expanding sector. Increased population growth and tourist activity should continue to stimulate employment in this area during the year. Almost 100,000 persons are expected to be employed in the retail trade sector and total sales volume should exceed $7 billion."

He said more than 65,000 persons will be employed by manufacturing firms by the end of 1980.

"Currently, the construction industry in the area employs approximately 30,000 workers and increases in construction payrolls are expected during the decade," Baughn said. "However, with rising interest rates and credit controls, the immediate outlook for residential construction and home sales remains in question. The construction of several large shopping centers and the development of other commercial property should help sustain the industry in the bi-county region."

In summary, Baughn said, the economic outlook for the Riverside-San Bernardino counties area remains bright for 1980 compared with other areas in California.

He said the Bank of America contributes to the economies of the many communities in the entire region through employment, new office construction, loans, BankAmerica Foundation grants, educational awards programs and other community-related projects.

Methodists appropriate $4 million for legal fight

By VONNE ROBERTSON
Staff Writer

The United Methodist Church's governing body has appropriated $4 million to fight lawsuits brought against it by the court-appointed trustee for 14 Pacific Homes, including Claremont Manor.

The action was taken during the church's annual conference in Indianapolis, Ind., which closed Friday.

The church stated it is willing to spend the $4 million over the next four years to fight collective church liability lawsuits which it claims will imperil its existence and operations.

The lawsuits want the church to be held liable for losses from the 1978 bankruptcy of Pacific Homes, the chain which operates retirement and medical facilities in Southern California, Arizona and Hawaii.

Claremont Manor, the only valley center involved in the suit, is still being operated by Pacific Homes during the reorganization period.

The retirement homes, serving 1,600 residents, were affiliated with the Southwest Conference of the church.

Richard E. Matthews, the court-appointed trustee, attempted to negotiate a $47 million settlement but the proposal was rejected by church spokesmen. Los Angeles Methodist Bishop Charles Golden said these settlements could cost up to $80 million.

Charging that Pacific Homes failed to live up to life-care contracts with retired residents, the suits seek $600 million damages and maintain that the 9.6 million member denomination is collectively responsible.

In preliminary proceedings, the California Court of Appeal has held the denomination as a whole answerable.

The first of several class-action suits is expected to go on trial in San Diego on June 16. One charge is that the Methodist church had been warned as early as 1954 that its resources were not being properly handled. The church has been accused of failing to set aside adequate long-term reserves.

The church governing conference Thursday called the suit "a fundamental threat...unprecedented in the 200-year history of Methodists."

According to a report of the church's administrative council, this is the first known instance in which any civil court has imposed on a denomination an interpretation contrary to its own. It added that "the suit portends a devastating impact on religious, benevolent and charitable services."

County supervisors back Proposition 1

The county board of supervisors has gone on record in favor of Proposition 1, the $495 million park lands and renewable resources bond issue on June's ballot.

The bond issue would provide more than $3.2 million for various park agencies in San Bernardino County. Some $95 million would be earmarked for direct grants to counties, cities and special park and recreation districts statewide, based on a per-capita allotments.

Another $35 million would go for park use with the state picking up 75 percent of project costs and local governments the remaining 25 percent.

Chino Hills State Park has received a top rating by state park officials for acquisition of open space should Proposition 1 pass.

Prison land may become park

By BOB NAGEY
Staff Writer

A 40-acre parcel of prison land may be developed into a $5 million community park in Chino.

The parcel, now used for grazing, is located on the southwest corner of the 2,000-acre California Institution for Men. Valued at more than $1.5 million, it has been turned over to the city on a long-term lease, provided it is developed as a "buffer" between the prison and the community.

Last week the city Parks and Recreation Commission presented a $3.5 million master plan of development to the City Council. It calls for the construction of six lighted baseball and softball fields, parking lots for 455 cars, a pavilion complex, a jogging and exercise court, handball and racquetball courts, community picnic and barbecue areas, restrooms and landscaping.

The council did not formally accept the proposal but indicated it was in favor of going ahead with the first phase of the program that calls for the construction of two lighted junior baseball fields, handball courts, landscaping, tree planting and other amenities at an estimated cost of $412,000.

Gayler Sullivan, a partner in the Brea consulting firm of Saito/Sullivan Associates, said the first phase could be completed within two years.

The commission, during the joint meeting with the council, described the development of the park site at the corner of Edison and Central Avenues as "well-supported by the community" and the support appeared to grow as the meeting progressed.

Chairman Carolyn Owens said the commission already had commitments from youth organizations such as the Little League and the American Youth Soccer Organization to provide some of the labor needed for sight preparation.

Commissioner Pete Watson reported that the Chino Basque Club has asked for the construction of a handball court at the park, and is willing to pay for it as well as for the preparation of a master plan at the corner of Mountain and Chino avenues.

And just as the meeting was coming to an end, Eric Oldar, the Southern California representative of the state Division of Forestry, disclosed that the state has set aside $500,000 for tree-planting projects, and that the community park could be eligible for at least a $50,000 grant.

"I live in Chino," he said. "I see no reason why we can't get such a grant. The only catch is, there must be community participation."

He said it would take about six months to process such an application, but he was confident of approval.

The state grant, along with the $300,000 which already is in the park development account of the commission, is almost enough to finance the first phase. Joe Guzzetta, interim director of the Parks and Recreation Department, said there may be some other open space grants that could be acquired for additional financing.

Mayor Larry Walker said that although the council was not prepared to give official approval to the proposed master plan, council members had expressed themselves as generally in favor of the first phase. He said the commission could use the feedback as a clue for direction.

"I guess the two lighted ball diamonds, preferably along Central Avenue, are the backbone of the first phase," he declared. "But I'm also impressed by the volunteer group members who have expressed interest in working on separate sites."

Commissioner Fred Guillemet expressed some concern that a fully developed recreation park "might become a CIM site on Sundays," as parents planning to visit prisoners drop children off to play. But the councilmen did not appear worried about that.

The original proposal had called for the construction of two lighted tennis courts, but Walker said he felt two courts were not enough.

Catholic Daughters sponsored

Poetry, essay contest winners

Our Lady of Lourdes and Tina Terracina of St. Joseph's.

Prizes of $10 for first place, $5 for second place and $3 for third place will be presented at the schools by Isabel Smith, education chairman of the court.

These winners were announced during a recent court meeting, when Mrs. Bernard Teich, regent, announced that there would be no delegates attending the national convention in Washington, D.C.

Members voted approval of the resolutions to be presented at the convention in May.

Other business conducted included voting to send donations to Santa Claus Inc., the West End Chapter of the National Conference of Christians and Jews and the American National Red Cross.

It was announced that the annual salad bar luncheon of the Ontario Deanery, San Bernardino Diocese of Catholic Women, will be held at noon this Thursday at the Sacred Heart Parish

An industrial customer, right, discusses various means of conserving electric energy with Robert Murphy, energy services representative with Southern California Edison Co. Display and conservation seminars on lighting, demand control and air conditioning will be featured in the World Bazaar Building No. 5, Los Angeles County Fairgrounds, Pomona, June 10 and 11.

Edison will sponsor local energy seminar

New concepts in energy conservation to benefit commercial and industrial companies will be on display in the World Bazaar Building 5, Los Angeles County Fairgrounds, Pomona, on June 10-11, from noon to 6 p.m., Southern California Edison Co. has announced.

The two-day focus on efficient use of power in business is being sponsored by the electric utility in cooperation with the area chambers of commerce, according to R. D. Blake, Edison division manager.

More than 100 companies from around the United States will be on hand to show their latest energy conservation/load management techniques and equipment, he said.

Afternoon seminars in lighting, demand control and air conditioning are scheduled on both days of the exhibit, he said. A seminar on lighting will be held on June 10, 2-3 p.m. Demand control will be the subject of discussion on June 11, 1:30-3:30 p.m., and air conditioning, 3-4 p.m.

To reserve seats for the seminars, contact Connie Challenor, at Edison's

Retiring after 30 years of work

Chaffey counselor ending career

By JIM MARXEN
Staff Writer

Thirty years ago, Earl Osborn made a career change. Trading a bookkeeper's pencil for a classroom, he came to Chaffey High School and began a 30-year career that will end next week.

During that period he left the classroom and devoted his efforts to counseling. He retired as assistant principal of pupil personnel, a title he prefers to call head counselor.

"When I started teaching at Chaffey, I didn't even know where Ontario was," he said. "They put me in a shack out back where the rain leaked through. It was like being in Siberia."

After three years and a transfer to a more comfortable classroom, Osborn took a year off for travel, additional education and to evaluate his career.

"That year really opened my eyes," he said. "I don't know if it was the travel or the education but somehow I had a different concept of the community and of teaching. "My fourth year of teaching was my most successful but I never taught again because I was asked to be a counselor."

He spent the next 15 years in that capacity and was appointed to his current position in 1970. His experience as a teacher, counselor and a member of the school's administration, he said, has given him unique insight.

"When I was a counselor I was a critic of management. I gave them a bad time."

"Now I like administration and I realize what a valuable asset it is to have critics. They keep you on the right path."

A major goal in Osborn's career has been the development of students' decision-making skills. He said students continually handled authoritatively become "emotionally handicapped" and fail to make decisions on their own.

"It's the student who is involved in decision-making who will do the best in life," he said.

His dislike for authoritarianism carries over into his relationship with counselors.

"There are people who get things done using an iron fist. That's not my style," he said. "And it's worked very well for me."

"My counselors are not mine to do my bidding."

Members of the Chaffey High School counseling team agree with Osborn's style of management.

"He gives us our rein," said counselor Joseph Eakins. "He's very flexible."

He sees the role of the educator as necessary to preserve the culture of mankind.

"There's an expression I adopted from my first supervisor in this school, Helen Story Brown. She used to write notes and sign them, 'yours for the cause'."

"I knew what she meant when she said that. The cause is the dedication that educators have toward youth. It's the cause of youth."

Yet, he said, education has become the public's "whipping boy." In reference to contract negotiations, he said some members of the public view teachers as money-grabbers.

He compared public opinion of education with Shirley Jackson's story "The Lottery."

"The lot is already drawn against education. It gets rocked all the time," he said.

"The schools are a safe target, they're convenient. I say that if a teacher doesn't want to do something for students they should find another job."

"A good teacher will see the job as demanding and like other professions teachers must look out for themselves."

One of the biggest changes in education, he said, was the development of comprehensive high schools that offer vocational classes and other specialized curricula.

Despite the wide range of classes, he said one of the biggest problems educators face is a growing student absentee rate.

"The biggest problem we face is apathy on the part of students. There is a lack of conviction from families and the kids don't want to come to school. It's not just a problem in this district, it's nationwide."

During his tenure as assistant principal, Osborn helped develop a system of counseling that ties into student due process procedures. Mandated by the courts, due process gives students who get into trouble many of the rights within the country's judicial system.

"He's done an amazing job with the due process procedure," said counselor Andrea Smith. "He showed he is extremely perceptive and sensitive to the subject."

"He's an innovator," Eakins added.

At 65, Osborn, who underwent open heart surgery three years ago, said health is the major reason for his decision to leave.

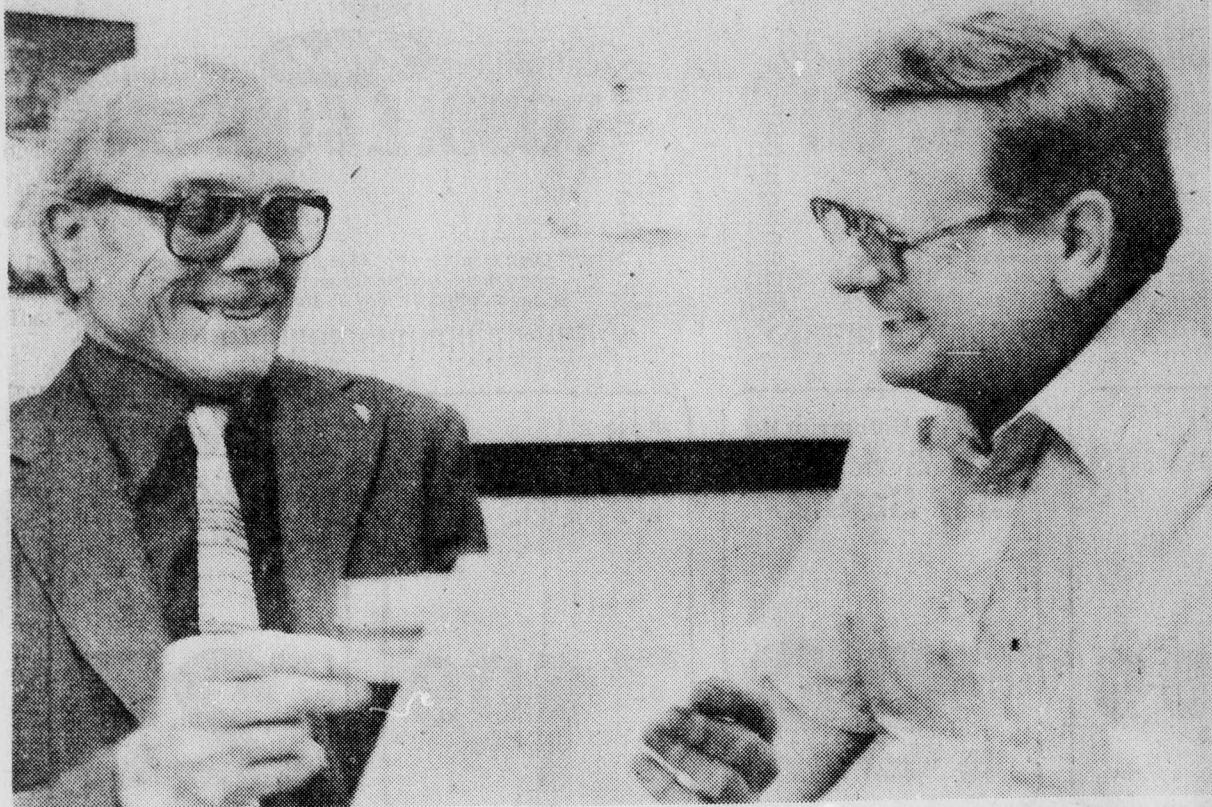

"I don't think I have an unlimited life ahead of me," he said. "My body might be better off if I don't have to work."

"In 10 years I have seen some very good things happen and right now I am not thinking about change. That's another sign that I should be getting out. You need an element of change in this job."

His resignation, according to counselors at Chaffey, will leave a void.

"We're going to miss his leadership," said counselor Edward Whitney.

District officials are waiting out the vote on Proposition 9, the tax cut initiative, before filling Osborn's position.

school day. Osborn will leave his post later this month after 30 years of work at the school. (Staff Photo)

Congressional candidates call for reduced spending

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

Four Republican candidates in the 35th Congressional District found common ground Thursday when they called for limited government and reduced federal spending.

Fran Livingston, David Dreier, Don Feldman and Russ Blewett spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Pomona Valley Republican Women Federated in Montclair.

Two other candidates — Cecil Osoff of Claremont and Walter Hollywood of Arcadia — did not attend the forum.

The six Republicans are seeking their party's nomination in the June 3 primary in hopes of wresting the seat from Democrat Jim Lloyd, a three-term incumbent. The 35th Congressional District includes all of the West End.

Thursday's forum showed little in the way of pronounced differences among the candidates.

Blewett commented, "All of us are basic conservatives up here. I've met with all of these people, and they're great people. And every damn one of them would be infinitely better than Jim Lloyd."

Livingston, a member of the Pomona Valley group, said, "I think we're all good Republicans, all of us who are running, and that's the important thing to remember."

Many of the comments were philosophical in tone, focusing on the candidates' beliefs in limited government, and the need to loosen Democrats' long control of Congress.

Don Feldman — president of Spartan Metals in Covina and a candidate for the party's nomination two years ago — paraphrasing 18th century economist Adam Smith, said, "The government's function ... was to protect the rights of all individuals and not allow any group or any individual to exploit any other group or any other individual."

People, not government, built the country, Feldman said.

Dreier — director of public affairs for a San Dimas firm and Lloyd's Republican opponent in 1978 — quoted Thomas Jefferson.

"A wise and frugal government shall refrain men from injuring one another and shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government."

Dreier said, "My philosophy is one of subscribing totally to that."

Livingston — an occupational therapist, college instructor and trustee of the Pomona Unified School District — said, "This Congress, controlled by Democrats, has allowed us to go to the brink."

She said the next Congress should be "lean and mean" and "guarantee our survival for the '80s."

Blewett — owner of a Rancho Cucamonga carpet firm and former mayor of Baldwin Park — said the average American works until May 10 to pay taxes and keeps only that income earned the rest of the year.

"The battle is between those people who want more government sector and those that want more private sector. The private sector is a producer of wealth; the public sector is only a consumer."

The Republican candidates charged Lloyd with talking one way and voting another.

Dreier said Lloyd "falls right in line with the liberal Democratic majority."

Specifically, Dreier said Lloyd voted against bringing a constitutional amendment to ban forced busing to a vote on the House floor and then when the amendment itself reached the floor he voted for it, because there were enough votes to defeat it.

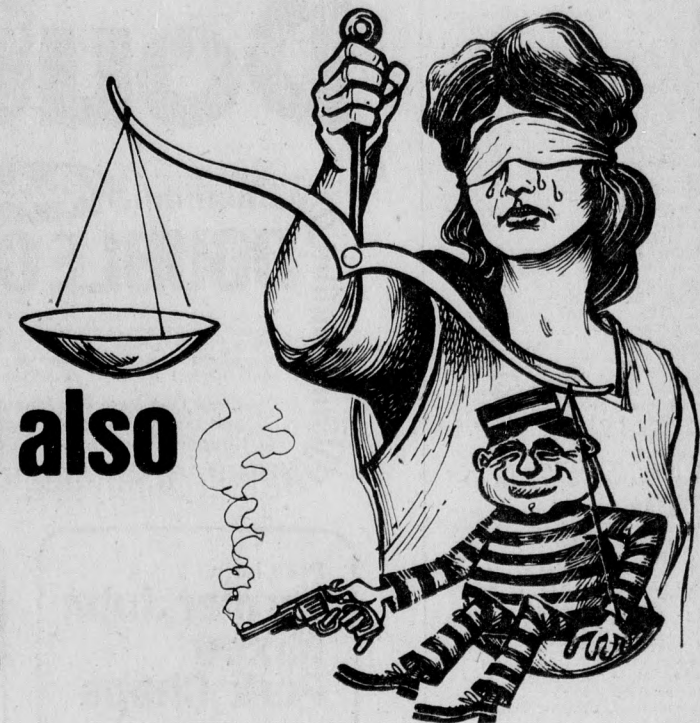

Jerry Joe Giovaniello, Lloyd's administrative assistant, said this morning Lloyd voted against the procedural measure because the House Judiciary Committee had not held hearings on the amendment. He voted for the amendment because he has always been opposed forced busing. Giovaniello added.

William Mocharnuk, an Upland real estate broker, has been installed as president of the Upland Host Lions, succeeding Harold Batchelor. He is a member of the Ontario-Upland-Chino Board of Realtors and an instructor at Chaffey College. Other new officers are Malcolm Millar, first vice president; Charles Thomas, second vice president; Jim Colgan and Kenneth Hawes, tail twisters; Dick Bissell, lion tamer, and Staff Hambly, secretary-treasurer. Local resident attends church conference Reporting on the 53rd World Congress of Seventh-day Adventists held in Dallas, Texas with 30,000 delegates and observers from 190 countries, Jim Walters, pastor of North Hills Church in Claremont cited several firsts.

According to Walters it was the first time the largest delegation came from outside North America. The phenomenal growth in Inter-America during the last five years established it as the largest division in the church, with an average of 150 additional members a day.

The session brought the first non-Caucasian to high officer status with the appointment of Barbados-born G. Ralph Thomson as executive secretary. This position is second only to that of President Neal Wilson, whose 1979 appointment was confirmed at this session. It was also the first time in the church history that a non-American was named treasurer of the World Church. He is Lance L. Butler of Sydney, Australia. The session also saw the first Black-African elected head of a territorial division. Bekele Heye from Ethiopia will direct the Afro-Mideast Division.

As to the status of women in the church, President Wilson maintains that "women were created equal to men and should be contributing more of their talents at both local and various conference levels." He would encourage ordination of women as church elders. It was agreed. Some large churches such as Loma Linda Hill and Loma Linda University churches have been ordaining women to their ministry for several years.

Skin drums which once sounded for worship in Uganda sounded again for worshippers the last Saturday for the Pageant of Missions. Wooden drums were responded to as readily by Europeans and American delegates as those from the South Pacific.

Surprising were statistics showing that now 80 percent of the world church resides outside of the U.S. The membership in Australasia division is most densely Adventist.

Many missions are becoming at least partially self supporting while most were supported by North American Division five years ago. Now about 40 percent of the support comes from other divisions.

The number of pupils and students in Norway's educational institutions is about 830,000. If persons in adult educational courses are included, the total is 1.8 million. Thirteen thousand pupils attend private schools. Norway's population is 4,080,000.

about becoming involved in, the sponsorship of refugees from Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos.

The seminar, which will feature contributions from persons in the field of refugee resettlement, is a joint production of the Pomona Valley Council of Churches and the Lutheran Immigration and Refugee Service.

According to representatives from both of these agencies, the seminar marks the first official act in a concerted, ecumenical program initiated by local congregations and designed to provide homes and a chance at a new life for the victims of the turmoil in Southeast Asia.

At present the State Department is allowing up to 14,000 Indochinese refugees to immigrate to the United States each month. What is now needed for the fulfillment of this quota is a concomitant outpouring of willing sponsors to make the necessary effort to clothe, house, find jobs for, and provide for the emotional support of these refugees as they strive to become self-sufficient, contributing members of our community.

To coordinate what is hoped will be a significant contribution toward ending much personal suffering and protecting the integrity of many families, the Pomona Valley Council of Churches has enlisted the assistance of the Lutheran Immigration and Refugee Service. LIRS, in conjunction with the Refugee Resettlement Program Committee of the PVCC (Ian Richardson, chairman), has opened an office in Upland and has staffed it with a sponsorship developer who will soon be joined by a refugee caseworker.

Many people scrambling for exotic investments

By MARTIN GERCHEN
Copley News Service

As the price of gold soars while the dollar falls, people are scrambling into more and more exotic investments as hedges against inflation.

Rare autos, for example, have outperformed the Dow Jones.

Baseball cards have seen some heavy play. Even ornate cigar bands from turn-of-the-century brands are being bought up by investors who hope they will appreciate faster than inflation.

So widespread is this phenomenon that trust officers of City National Bank have had to educate themselves about the values of rare wine because they are seeing so many estates being probated which have substantial investments in old vintages.

Some people are speculating in wine now as others do in gold, one of them said.

Stamp collections are also showing up in the trust department, with result that at least two offices of the bank, which is headquartered in Beverly Hills, have become knowledgeable about both wine and stamps as inflation hedges.

There is a growing trend in collectibles as people lose confidence in money and money-oriented investments, says Allan Gunderson, a vice president and trust officer of the bank.

He's the wine expert. Gary Fentress, also a vice president and trust officer, has an interest in both wine and stamps.

Gunderson explained that when such collectibles show up in an estate, the trust officer handling the assets must know how to deal with them or the estate will pay the consequences.

For example, of $100,000 worth of wine were to show up in an estate and had to be sold, the best would not be sold first, Gunderson said.

The thing to do is lead off with some of the best, then follow with the second- and third- best choices.

"The leading case pulls up the value of the lesser-known wines as a drawing card," Gunderson explained in an interview.

"The largest price run-ups have come in the last five years, but there was a 30 percent run-up this year, and that's being conservative."

For example, he cited some wines which were selling for a few hundred dollars a bottle five years ago — a 1928 or 1929 Chateau Lafite Rothschild or a 1928 Chateau Mouton Rothschild.

Both are now close to $800 a bottle, Gunderson said. "People are speculating in wines as in gold, but there is no organized market. You can trade it at auctions. Wine collecting used to be just a hobby. The investor thrust began accelerating with inflation."

Interest in speculating in wine has been fueled by articles in previously stodgy investment publications. Traditional journals which dealt with stocks and bonds began writing about wine and stamps, Gunderson said.

"Some people got into wines in the late 1940s and bought it on a yearly basis. Some are collectors, some are drinkers, and some are both. People are trying to stay ahead of inflation with something they know."

It is wise to know the ways of wine, Gunderson emphasized. He cited the case of a jeroboam of 1929 Chateau Mouton Rothschild, which is a huge bottle holding the equivalent of six fifths.

It costs $20,000, while a fifth of the same wine costs about $795. This means the real value of the jeroboam is under $5,000 but because so few of them were made, there is a mystique (and a high price) to them, Gunderson said.

For those interested in the future of investing in wine, Gunderson said, "I don't think that a rare premium California wine in the next 10 years would even come close to a similar wine from France."

"The 1928 Lafite and the 1968 (California) Mayacamas are different, but both fantastic. However, more people know about the French wine. Like any collectible, the more people know about it the more valuable it is.

"Ingenook bottled before the turn of the century went for between $75 to $100 at an auction 18 months ago. A corresponding bottle of Lafite would go for four times that price."

Gunderson emphasized that as a banker he is not advising people to get into such collectibles as wine, but if they choose to, as many are, they should know something about the topic. He also suggested storing wine in a cool, dry place. Light and air cause spoilage.

In the last few weeks, a single bottle of 1806 Chateau Lafite Rothschild, a favorite of Thomas Jefferson, was paid about 25 cents for it, was sold at auction in New York State for $28,000 or $1.166 per ounce.

It had been stored properly, and the people who paid $1,500 each at a charity affair to taste it said they had gotten their money's worth — they all said it was supreme.

Also supreme has been the performance of the rare stamp market. Using 1946, the first post-war year, as a base, a random stamp portfolio appreciated 746 percent through 1977, Gunderson noted.

During the same 1945-77 period, the Dow Jones Industrial Average increased 511 percent.

Obledo says state has many hopeless residents

By ROBERT P. STUDER
Copley News Service

It was late September in 1979 and Mario Obledo, California's secretary of health and welfare, found himself in downtown Los Angeles, strolling in the neighborhood of the Regency Hotel. It was a Sunday, and he had arrived a little early for a Monday morning meeting.

"I've seen a lot of things in my time, rough times while I was growing up, but for the first time I really began to feel a bit frightened," he recalled in an interview. "The people that crowded the sidewalks were, on this typical Sunday afternoon, in the backwaters of society... hopeless, talking to themselves, really out of it, hunting through garbage cans for something to eat. Yet we were standing in the midst of beautiful skyscrapers in one of the major cities of America, surrounded by beautiful glass, fountains, mirrored windows."

"I was surrounded by the kind of desperation that we usually associate with some of the worst areas of our older, Eastern cities. The hopelessness has come West... That experience both shocked and stuck with California's health and welfare secretary, who oversees $12 billion of California's governmental spending every year.

"To me, it was a message that we are deficient in our responsibility to help these people," he said. And that is one reason why, regardless of whether or not "Jarvis II" passes — the Proposition 9 on the June primary ballot which would cut state income taxes in half and reduce governmental revenues — funding for mental health will remain a high-priority item for the state of California.

Part of the problem, Obledo said, is that policy and funding cutbacks intended to move mental patients out of "warehousing" state hospital facilities and back to local community facilities have reduced state hospital populations from 20,000 of a few years ago to about 5,000 today — without adequate care for these people being provided on a local level.

The Health and Welfare Agency

currently is seeking a $25 million budget augmentation from the Legislature to help the counties to provide better care for the mentally ill and the elderly.

Acting under authority of Senate Bill 354, the agency is finishing work on a "fairly detailed" plan for providing care for these people, Obledo said. He added that there are differences of opinion, however, as to the best approach. However, he stressed, this problem is so critical that it will remain a viable plan in our budgeting for next year regardless of what happens to Jarvis II.

"One of my top priorities is to get money for mental health services in the state," he said. "The problem is widespread. You can see the same thing I saw in Los Angeles if you walk down the K Street Mall in Sacramento within a block of the state Capitol."

"We also are working on a master plan for the elderly. I would like to see us give the elderly a choice of lifestyles — whether they want to work or not work, or where they would like to live, or what they would like to do with their remaining years."

He added that he believes "We may be able to do something like this under existing procedures with some modifications. I wouldn't call this welfare, though, any more than a pension provided for a military person or government retiree could be called welfare.

"Everybody derives some benefit from government, either directly or indirectly."

Major shoe rebellion afoot

By NATALIE BEST
Copley News Service

NEW YORK — There's a major shoe rebellion. Some call it the sports shoe phenomenon.

Athletic shoes, once reserved for the jogger, are pushing the high-heel strap shoe farther back in the closet. Popular shoes for general wear are the "leisure" shoes.

"You no longer have to be an athlete to wear sports shoes," says Dr. Rob McGregor, a podiatrist and consultant to The Footwear Council.

"The sports shoe look is a big outgrowth of the 'athleisure' trend toward sporting hobbies. Furthermore, it's good for you to wear them everywhere."

Although the spike heel was introduced in Paris and New York several years ago and accepted across the nation, it's losing out to flat, comfortable shoes — except for disco dancing and special occasion wearing.

The high-heel sandal and pump, worn by women in the '50s and reintroduced in the '70s, is becoming a high-priced, often uncomfortable - to - wear, luxury item to be worn for no more than three or four hours at a time, according to many shoe salesmen from Maine to California.

"Although the high-heel sandal offers more femininity and beauty to the foot, many older women are refusing to return to them and younger women buy them as a high-fashion shoe to be worn occasionally," according to Terry Wheeler, manager of the shoe department for John Hogan's, a West Coast high-fashion specialty store.

"The major push for high-fashion shoes has more to do with a look than price or comfort," says Wheeler. "Even the fashion-conscious women are buying more low to moderate heel, closed-toe shoes in keeping with the trend for sports clothes, now appearing."

"I see the high-fashion shoes remaining for some time but they will be modified for next fall," he says. "Women now want comfort, primarily, for everyday wear."

The jogging craze started people wearing sports shoes with everyday clothing and they are now part of the whole fashion picture.

24-hour work shifts

Airport security officers ready for unexpected

Security is a 365-day-a-year job at Ontario International Airport. That is, until you get to leap year. Then it's a 366-day-a-year job.

And, of course, security officers are on the job the clock around.

David T. Nave, chief airport security officer, said he and his staff of 27 people — three captains and 24 safety officers — are responsible for the security of the airport.

Their jobs include all crash, fire and rescue operations of aircraft and such other operations as loading and unloading, checking of landing fees for non-signatory landings and inspection of facilities.

In addition, three women work under his supervision in the communications center.

Nave pointed out that investigation of crimes and structural fires at the airport are under the jurisdiction of the city of Ontario.

For example, he said, "My people police the parking areas here regularly. If we catch someone stealing or damaging a car, we turn them over to the city. We are peace officers and are empowered to make arrests."

"Our operation," he noted, "is open 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. When everyone else goes home at 5 p.m., my people are still here."

"Our officers work 24-hour shifts one on and one off. This figures out to be 2,922 hours a year or approximately 56 hours a week."

Nave said the Federal Aviation Administration holds the airlines — not the airport — responsible for checking passengers' carry-on luggage for weapons or other dangerous devices. The airlines employ a private security company to man the magnetometer (a metal-checking contrivance) and the X-ray machine that examines luggage.

These devices check passengers and luggage before they board a plane.

On the other hand, Nave noted, the FAA holds airports responsible for law enforcement at these screening points.

"The airport employs off-duty Ontario policemen to be present during the time we're screening flights," he said. "A policeman is stationed at each of the airport's two loading gates, remaining on duty until all of the flights that originate here have departed at varying times from day to day. This provides us with officers to enforce the law at the screening points."

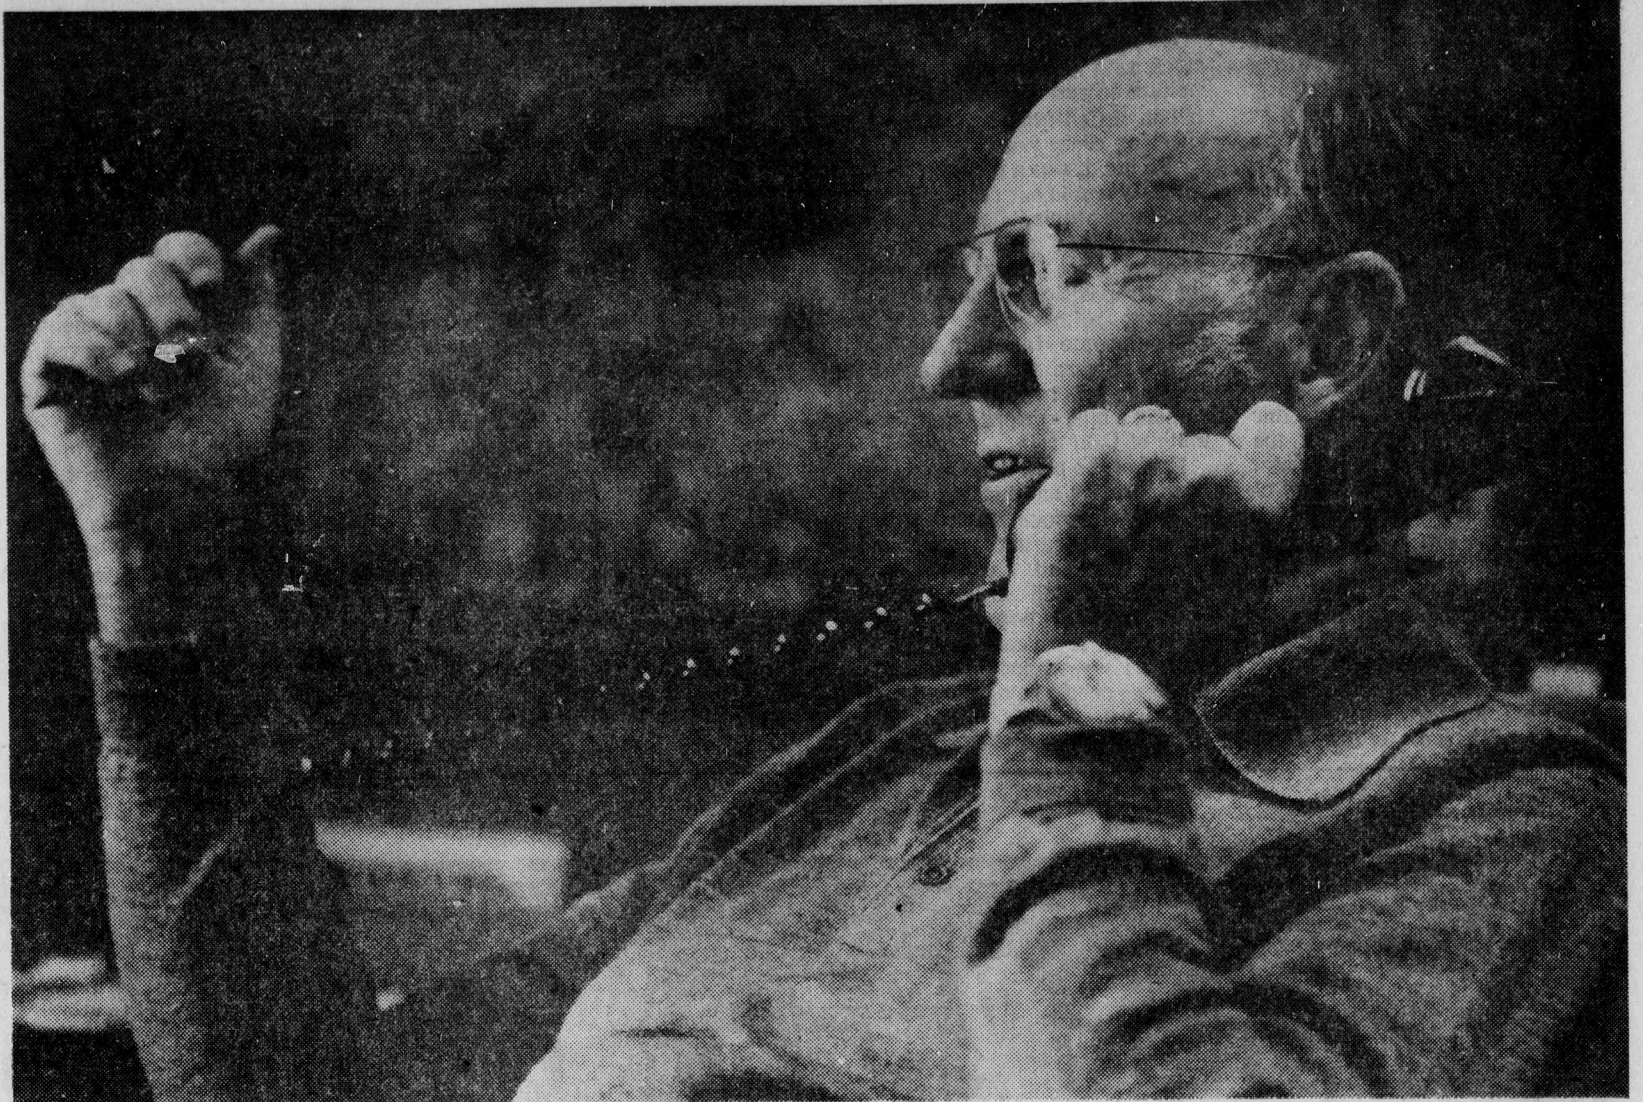

Golden West, a commuter airline, is headquartered in a separate building at the airport and — as of now — is not required to screen its passengers or luggage, Nave said. He added, however, that this procedure is expected to change within the year when stricter regulations will be imposed.

Otherwise, Nave pointed out, the plan for use of the Terminal Building calls for loading passengers from six airlines at what is called the east gate, located at approximately in the center of the Terminal Building. These airlines are American, Western, Hughes Airwest, United and Continental.

PSA, Air California and American Airlines passengers are screened at the west gate at the extreme right-hand end of the lobby as you enter the Terminal Building.

Nave said the working agreement with the Ontario Police Department has been a "beneficial relationship."

"It's good for us because we've gotten to know most of the Ontario police officers on a one-to-one basis. It's beneficial to them because they have been able to pick up some extra hours."

The security force's duties include administration of first aid.

"We keep first aid kits and inhalators on hand in case of accident or illness," said Nave. "In these cases, we call the Ontario Fire Department for paramedic service, which we're not equipped to provide, and the Ontario Police Department for ambulance service."

What kind of health problems are most likely to occur at the airport? "We have more heart problem cases than anything," he said.

Nave, who assumed his duties at the airport in May 1971 after 30 years' fire service experience in Los Angeles, said a condition for getting a job as a security officer at the airport is two years of municipal firefighting experience.

The decision of the Los Angeles Department of Airports was to "set this up with firemen and train them for police duties," Nave noted. "They're all required to have full certification as peace officers."

At New York City airports, the procedure is the opposite. "They hire police officers and train them to be firemen," Nave said.

He believes the Los Angeles approach is "a good idea for several reasons. It's almost impossible to give a fellow the exposure to fire he needs. It's important that they have been there before and won't panic when they have to respond to the pressures of an aircraft fire."

"Fire and police departments," he continued, "are looking for the same type of individual but those who go to work for a police department become enforcement-oriented. Those with fire departments become service-oriented."

"On this job, we feel it's better to have them service-oriented because we deal primarily in a public relations atmosphere. We think this (the L.A. department approach) is a definite plus for us here."

He said all of the officers at OIA get approximately 12 hours a day of work. A minimum of eight hours of this is performing security duties, including traffic control, and the remainder is for fire duty.

Traffic control is important, he said, because — as an example — "people would park anywhere" if the area weren't carefully patrolled.

Fire duty includes equipment repair and maintenance of quarters. When was the last time the department had to respond to a possible aircraft crash situation?

"About two weeks ago," Nave said. "A pilot of a small plane destined for another airport had a mechanical problem. He tried to land here but couldn't reach the airport and had to put his plane down in a vineyard."

"If it hadn't been for the vines, we would have got him down in good shape. As it was, the vines tore up the plane pretty badly but he was okay."

"There was no fire but our officers were on hand to assist."

How about crimes such as car theft?

"We lose a car or have some of its accessories stolen every once in a while. Most of these incidents happen at the main parking lot (adjacent to the Terminal Building). We've had no thefts of any kind from the remote lot."

What he called the remote lot is located south of Emporia Street on Walker Avenue, west of the airport. He said it's a big lot with parking space for up to 1,500 cars. The parking fee is $1.50 for 24 hours, compared to $4 a day for parking on the main lot.

Free transportation to the Terminal Building by a tram that runs every 15 minutes is provided, he added.

Nave pointed out that the fiscal 1979-80 budget for the security program at Ontario International Airport amounts to $746,000.

"Compare this with the Van Nuys Airport," he said. "They have no commercial carriers there — only general aviation — but they're spending in excess of $1 million for the same function."

World's highest

Yosemite falls a mighty show

By NEIL MORGAN
Copley News Service

YOSEMITE VALLEY — America's most boisterous natural show is under way here: Yosemite Valley's mighty waterfalls.

It was a wet, snowy winter in the Sierra Nevada above this central California valley, and when spring sunshine brings thaws, there's nowhere for the snowmelt to go except crashing down over the 3,000-foot sheer granite walls of Yosemite.

Yosemite Falls is 2,425 feet high, in a double take. It cascades about 70 feet through a narrow chute before dropping 1,430 feet into its first basin. Then it surges through a gorge as six separate waterfalls and cascades. The final plunge of 320 feet forms free-leaping lower falls around which visitors congregate, especially in the thundering spring days of its heaviest fall.

The Yosemite falls are the highest (and second highest in the world, after 3,212-foot Angel Falls in Venezuela) but there are dozens of others in Yosemite National Park.

Bridalveil Fall is a favorite, only 620 feet over the lip of a canyon into the valley, but graceful and easy to view. It is a classic of the hanging valley type of fall.

Sentinel Falls and Snow Creek Falls, both 2,000-foot series of falls, are less accessible to valley visitors, but rank third and fourth among the world's highest known waterfalls.

Yosemite Valley's falls began to peak in mid-April this year, but then came several days when snow level dropped to the 4,000-foot altitude and the snowmelt ceased.

By late April it had resumed, and National Park Service spokesman Herbie Sansum says he expects one of the heaviest falls of modern times to continue throughout May and much of June. In its early stages it is being compared with the water flow of spring 1978, one of the largest on record.

"It's beautiful," Sansum says, "and everybody flocks into the valley, but it can also get pretty grisly. People get mesmerized and crawl out on these slippery rocks and sometimes somebody will disappear and we don't find the body for six or eight weeks."

It's harder than ever to get a bed in Yosemite Valley this spring. Yosemite Park and Curry Corp., owned by Music Corporation of America, has been committing valley accommodations increasingly to group business.

Of the 5,267 sleeping spaces in the valley, including Camp Curry cabins and campgrounds, an estimated 65 percent are committed this spring to groups.

YPC reservations spokesmen say Yosemite Lodge and the Ahwahnee Hotel are almost solidly booked. Tent cabins are available at Camp Curry. There are occasional openings in the valley hotels, and cancellations. To seek these, telephone YPC reservations at (209) 373-4171.

Marine tradition strong on Okinawa

Copley News Service

NAHA, Okinawa — The U.S. Marines are here — 18,000 of them — and the situation is well in hand.

They have been here in varying numbers since D-Day (April 1, 1945) and in the words of Maj. Gen. Calhoun J. Killeen, "We're operational and ready, prepared for any emergency."

There are 35,000 U.S. servicemen on Okinawa these days but the Marines are America's cutting edge — combat ready — in the Western Pacific. The Army has about 2,000 men on this southernmost Japanese island, the Navy a few and the Air Force a sizable contingent at Kadena Air Base but even the airmen are of diminishing importance, although they have just received the first of what eventually will be 76 modern F-15 jet fighters.

The shrill cry among leftist Okinawans of "Americans, go home," loudest when the island had a Communist governor, is no longer heard. The U.S. forces, particularly the Marines, are an integral part of the combined U.S. - Japanese defense posture, and there is a growing awareness everywhere in Japan of the need for military preparedness.

The 3rd Marine Division, scattered throughout 67-mile-long Okinawa, is the primary force here. Two-thirds of the division is here, with something akin to a provisional brigade being stationed back in Hawaii. The Hawaii force, like the main segment here, can be airlifted to any Western Pacific trouble spot as needed.

Killeen, 53, a native of Pittsburgh, Pa., a veteran of several combat tours in Korea and Vietnam and holder of 15 different wartime decorations, was as direct as most Marines are in explaining the role of Marines so far from home.

"We are the CINCPAC (Commander in chief, Pacific) strategic force in the Western Pacific," he said. "We are ready to fight anywhere and we're not tied to Okinawa. There are planes in the Philippines, here and at Iwakuni (a Marine air base in mainland Japan) to take us where we need to go and there are amphibious ships in the area."

But, what role does Killeen see as primary for his men? "Well," he replied, "we are ready to protect American naval bases if necessary, to rescue Americans from embassies anywhere in Asia, to evacuate other American civilians. We're just plain ready — and operational and ready."

Aside from combat readiness, one of Killeen's responsibilities is as the American who deals with Japanese officials on the use of their land.

Gov. Junji Nishime, a conservative, is well pleased with Killeen's attitude on Japanese problems. One reason might be that the U.S. forces employ 8,000 Japanese, that Okinawa gets $125 million a year (paid by the Japanese central government) in rent for land used by the Marines in maneuvers, that the Marines' $100 million payroll in a large degree finds its way into Okinawa's economy, that $15.3 million in U.S. military contracts goes to Okinawa firms and that many other millions of dollars are earned on the island through U.S. presence here. This is vital to a prefecture that long has been neglected by Tokyo and is one of Japan's poorest.

This does not mean there are no problems. Some Okinawans cry out for return of their land (U.S. forces occupy and use on an occasional basis 12 percent of the land area). But, landowners are well paid for use of their areas for training, and every time there is a reduction in U.S. employment of Japanese (over the years the cut has been from 22,000 to 8,000), the cry is for the Marines to both stay and expand rather than "go home."

As a training area, Okinawa is quite satisfactory. "We're in training to the hilt," Killeen said. We can do what we have to do, between here and Fuji (the Mount Fujiyama area of Japan).

The Marines' motto — "semper fidelis" (always faithful) — is a living thing in Okinawa as the infantrymen, the tankers, the fliers and all the others fulfill their role as the leading edge of U.S. military presence in the Western Pacific.

Making recommendations on prevention

Doctors attack Legionnaires' disease

By LEW SCARR
Copley News Service
ATLANTA — Public health specialists at the Center for Disease Control here are organizing a two-front attack against Legionnaires' disease.

Recommendations will be made that are aimed at cleaning up cooling towers in central air-conditioning systems, believed to be the source of much of the disease when it results in large outbreaks.

The other attack is to develop a vaccine for high-risk populations.

After 180 persons were infected in July 1976 with a strange illness at a Legionnaires' convention in Philadelphia and 29 died, the biggest epidemiologic investigation in history was launched.

The bacterial culprit was identified at the Center of Disease Control (CDC) five months later. Since then, there have been sporadic individual cases reported and some group outbreaks, but nothing such as the one in Philadelphia.

Still, Dr. Albert Balows, director of the CDC's bacteriology division, concedes there are no assurances an outbreak of that magnitude will not occur again. But, he said in an interview, he believes the two-front attack will narrow the chances.

"We have been doing some work we hope ultimately will lead to development of what we call candidate vaccines," he said. "We are trying to identify those molecular components of the bacterial cell that appear to be associated with virulence to which the human would respond by producing antibodies that are protective.

"If we can do this, and we have some data that suggest this is possible, it should be possible to extract a chemical fraction that in itself is safe but when injected into the host (the human), would elicit the production of antibodies which in turn would help protect against infection from the disease."

Balows said there is strong evidence that this protection occurred naturally among many of the workers in Philadelphia's Bellevue Stratford Hotel, headquarters for the Legion convention.

"There was only one hotel employee who became ill in Philadelphia," he said, "and yet many of them were exposed to everything the Legionnaires were, both before and after the outbreak.

"We tested their (blood) serum and some of them had antibody levels which suggest that over the years they may have picked up the infection, were out sick with it, perhaps, and as a consequence got protection or immunity with the natural infection."

"We want to look into the structure of the organism and develop a vaccine that would do that same thing artificially. I think we can do it."

But is Legionnaires' disease enough of a public health hazard to spend the money and time for development of and then use of such a vaccine?

"I think it would be important, certainly, for those classes of individuals who are considered to be at greatest risk," Balows said.

"If we had a good safe, efficacious vaccine right now, tested and approved, it could be given to patients who have renal (kidney) disease, those who have had renal transplants, perhaps middle-aged persons or those on immunosuppressant drugs to help keep them from getting this disease while they are recovering from whatever their major disease may be."

But Balows said that such a vaccine is a long way from production and probably would not prevent a recurrence of a major outbreak.

He said the cleaning of air-conditioning cooling towers in large buildings might help prevent that.

It has been strongly suspected but never established that the cooling tower in the Bellevue Stratford was the habitat of the organisms that infected the Legionnaires.

The bacteria now is known to be distributed in a water habitat.

"They (the bacteria) have been in our environment probably before man was in the environment," Balows said. "And we also have found them in the condensation pans in large air-conditioning units."

The organism is airborne and probably is not transmitted person-to-person.

"Evidence so far indicates that person-to-person transmission has not occurred," Balows said, "but I don't think we should be lulled into a false sense of security."

"I think we should understand that we simply have not detected this person-to-person transmission. But if we look carefully at other pneumonias (Legionnaires' disease in its more serious form is a pneumonia), particularly bacterial pneumonias, there is clear evidence that they can be transmitted person-to-person."

"We would be foolish to make the conclusion that Legionella cannot be, too," he said.

Too many types, colors

Wallpaper selection difficult but guidelines help the choice

By LESLIE AYERS
Copley News Service
Selecting wallpaper can be one of the most difficult tasks in apartment decorating because of the multitude of samples you may look at while making your decision.

Using some simple guidelines, it is easier to sort through all of the choices and come up with something that is suitable for the various rooms of your apartment or condominium.

The first step is to take a look at your existing color scheme. Unless you are planning a complete redecorating, the present colors will be a strong factor in the selection of paper.

For instance, if your living room is to your satisfaction with rusts, browns and beiges, there is nothing wrong in building on this basic overall theme in the kitchen. In this case, you may wish to use a paper that has browns, beiges, whites and some blue.

Blue is the new color being introduced into the scheme. The other colors carry through from the living room into the kitchen.

The use of brown and blue accessories further enhances the new theme.

Wallpaper, like paint, should coordinate with other adjoining rooms so that the eye does not suddenly stop. Instead, it is carried along gently from room to room.

Other factors used in selecting paint for a room also apply to wallpaper. Consider the use of the room, its sun exposure and its size in selecting the design and color of your wallpaper.

To open up a small room, select a large open pattern like a trellis or bamboo with a light background. To increase the ceiling height, use a vertical stripe, and to widen a room, select a pattern with a horizontal stripe.

Grass cloths, weaves and other textured papers provide warmth and richness without introducing a pattern that may fight with paintings and furnishings.

Small prints used in small bathrooms will make the room seem cozy, while small prints used on a big wall will make the wall appear smaller.

Like prints, dark colors in patterns and background make a room appear smaller. If you have a large room and wish to make it seem warmer, use warm colors. A hot room can be cooled down with the use of cool colors like greens and blues in the pattern.

As you think through the answers to all of these questions, your list of possible wallpapers will narrow and you'll be down to a few that seem to fit the bill. It won't be unusual to end up with two or three "perfect" papers for a room. At this point, just flip a coin and go with the toss.

Flavored with sherry

Bananas make a great dessert

Springtime almost always means entertaining. Whether you plan a sumptuous evening affair or a casual afternoon get-together, everyone anticipates the dessert course. And a cake that includes the delectable flavor of ripe bananas is certain to satisfy everyone's sweet tooth.

Banana Poppy Seed Cake is for more casual entertaining, or even a great ending for a family meal. Bananas are mashed right into the batter, which is crunchy from cornmeal and uniquely spiced with poppy seeds and cinnamon. For best results, use very ripe bananas. The cake has so much good, wholesome flavor, no icing is necessary. It's an economical, all-purpose dessert that goes well with morning coffee or after-school milk.

Sherried Banana Cake

1 package yellow cake mix
4 large bananas, unpeeled
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons dry sherry
1 tablespoon sugar
Whipped Cream Frosting*

Prepare and bake cake in two 9 x 1 1/2-inch layer cake pans according to package directions. Remove from pans and cool as directed. Place unpeeled bananas on baking sheet. Bake in a 350 degree F. oven 25 to 30 minutes or until very soft. Remove bananas from peel and place in container of electric blender. Add butter, sherry and sugar. Blend until smooth. Cool slightly. Slice each cake layer horizontally. Place one layer on a plate, spread with one-third banana filling. Repeat with two more layers and remaining banana filling. Top with remaining cake layer. Frost top and sides of cake with Whipped Cream Frosting*. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Yield: One 9-inch layer cake.

*Whipped Cream Frosting

2 cups heavy cream
1/2 cup sour cream
1 cup confectioners' sugar
1/4 teaspoon vanilla

Combine ingredients in large bowl. Beat at medium speed until it's of good spreading consistency, about 4 minutes. Yield: Enough to frost top and sides of two 8 or 9-inch layers.

Banana Poppy Seed Cake

1 1/2 cups mashed ripe bananas (4 bananas)
1/4 cup sugar
2/3 cup vegetable oil
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
1 1/2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1/2 cup yellow cornmeal
3 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 cup poppy seeds
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon

In a large mixing bowl combine bananas, sugar, oil and vanilla. Beat until smooth. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. In a small bowl, stir together flour, cornmeal, baking powder, poppy seeds, salt and cinnamon. Add to banana mixture, stir to blend well. Pour batter into a greased 9 x 9-inch pan. Bake in a 350 degree F. oven for 45 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Yield: One 9-inch square cake.

Eggs continue to be bargain

Low egg prices in May and throughout the summer mean that eggs will remain a protein bargain, according to Carey Bradley, Director of Statistics and Economics, United Egg Producers, Atlanta, GA. A dozen large eggs weigh 1 1/2 pounds, so, when those eggs are selling for 75 cents a dozen that's only 50 cents a pound for high-quality protein.

Count on eggs to star at light but nutritious spring and summer meals, in omelets, quiches or simple scrambled egg skillet suppers. Hard-cooked eggs, kept in the refrigerator, can be the basis of egg salads, egg sandwiches or just plain out-of-hand snacks.

For an easy quicker-than-instant breakfast, or for a refreshing pick-me-up, whip together in a blender 1 egg, 1 cup orange juice and a teaspoon of honey. Great refreshment.

Fried sandwiches can make a satisfying meal, so try a hearty one on a bun with extra fixings of your choice: cheese, sliced mushrooms, bacon strips, lettuce, whatever. Or try spreading hot pizza sauce (from a can) on toasted English muffins, then topping each muffin half with a fried egg and a Mozzarella cheese slice—almost instant pizza!

Snow-White Turkey Salad will chase recipe 'blahs'

Ready for a change of menu? It's easy when you have a great new recipe to get you out of the rut.

Snow-White Turkey Salad is one suggestion for a starter. Why snow-white? Because the dressing is as smooth and white as new snow. It combines whipped cream and mayonnaise with the subtle flavor of onion and bouillon and is served over tender chunks of turkey. To complete this meal-in-a-bowl, add sliced fresh pineapple, grapes, apple or other imaginative people-pleasers. It's perfect for luncheons or as a do-ahead dinner for busy family nights.

How about cost? Turkey still is one of the best meat buys anywhere. In virtually every market area the cost is far below that of red meats.

Compare price, compare food value, compare appetite appeal — and you'll chase the "blahs" with turkey.

Snow-White Turkey Salad

4 cups diced cooked turkey
1 cup thin sliced celery
1 cup minced green pepper
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1 cup mayonnaise

1/4 cup whipping cream whipped
1 teaspoon chicken bouillon granules
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

Sliced apple, grapes, pineapple chunks, avocado slices, hard-cooked egg or toasted almonds as garnish.

Combine turkey, celery, green pepper and onion. Combine mayonnaise, whipped cream, bouillon granules, salt and pepper; mix well. Fold into turkey-vegetable mixture and refrigerate until serving time. Mound turkey salad on bed of crisp lettuce and circle with your choice of garnishes.

If you and your family number yourselves among the sack lunch bunch, these tips will help take the drudgery from daily lunch preparation and make mealtime a treat.

One way to cut down on daily sack lunch preparation time is to take a tip from efficiency experts and fix in bulk. Try preparing the food for your family's lunches for the entire week on Saturday or early in the week. You'll save time and money, too.

For instance, you can measure individual portions of dried fruits for the week into separate plastic sandwich bags, then store in the sacks in which you'll be taking your lunch. You may want to core and slice apples, then dip slices in a fruit preserving preparation or any citrus juice (pineapple juice not only keeps the apple fresh, but adds a delicious flavor as well). Store in plastic bags in the refrigerator, ready to pack as a flavor treat for any weekday lunch.

Vegetables lend themselves to making ahead, as well. When you purchase your carrots, celery or radishes, you may want to clean and slice the entire bunch, seal individual portions of carrot and celery sticks, radishes, etc. in plastic storage bags with a damp paper towel around them, then store in the refrigerator. The paper towel not only keeps the vegetables fresh until mealtime, but can serve as a handy hand wipe when you or your children finish that specially packed sack lunch.

You can save money by passing up those small, individual bags of potato chips, corn chips, and similar snacks. Buy the large bags instead, then package individual portions in sandwich bags and seal. Store in your lunch sack where your portion is ready for packing to work or school. An added advantage over commercially packaged individual portions is that you can pack larger portions for man-sized appetites, smaller portions for children.

Packing the week's cookies, granola, brownies, or other dessert in plastic sandwich bags will keep individual portions fresh and ready to eat. To make children's lunches more fun, you might place the different desserts, already packed for the week, in a large bag and let the children "draw" their dessert for the day.

Of course, sandwich bags are especially handy for packing your lunch box or sack lunch's main course. If you're tired of soggy lettuce in your sandwiches, pack the lettuce in a separate sandwich bag with a tiny sprinkling of water, then add it to your sandwich just before you eat. It will stay crisp and fresh.

Preparing ahead in bulk, and using your imagination to dream up food combinations that will tempt even reluctant eaters, will put spark into your family's sack lunches and make preparing them more fun.

Nutrition claims rapped

Exaggerated claims that nutrition will prevent or cure disease have become a thriving enterprise, according to the January issue of Consumer Reports.

"The fact that several well-defined disorders arise from nutritional deficiencies has been distorted into the notion that many diseases result from inadequate nutrition — and can be prevented or cured by taking large doses of vitamins and other food supplements, or by following odd dietary regimes."

Such claims, the magazine says, help support a multi-billion dollar business in so-called health foods, dietary supplements and nutrition publications.

According to the magazine, most Americans are not undernourished and the basics of sound nutrition aren't as complicated as people are sometimes led to believe. "If anything the trouble with good nutrition is that it's fairly straightforward and unexciting — not the stuff of which best sellers are made."

The magazine recommends the basic four food groups (milk, meat, vegetables and fruits, and breads and cereals) as a useful daily guide to a nutritionally balanced diet.

"While much is already known about the nutrients people need for good nourishment, scientific knowledge of the effects specific diets may have on health is still incomplete."

Classy continental name

Turn salad into gourmet delicacy

Combine chopped hard-cooked eggs with vegetables, chicken broth and gelatin, give it a classy, continental name and you've turned a humble egg salad into a gourmet delicacy.

Preparing this sophisticated molded salad will take very little effort. Just chop eggs, celery, green onions and green pepper, then combine them with a couple of seasonings, heated canned chicken broth and unflavored gelatin. Chill the mixture until it begins to gel, stir and spoon into individual molds. Chill until firm.

Eggs en Gelee is elegant as a salad with a light chicken or fish entree. It's also very appealing as a luncheon entree teamed with a light soup (perhaps consommé or vichyssoise) and crunchy bread sticks. However you choose to serve it, you'll be pleased to know that you are setting out a satisfying, nutritious, protein-rich dish that's extremely economical (it costs about 20 cents a

chopped
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup sliced green onions
1/4 cup chopped green pepper

1 teaspoon parsley flakes
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard

In medium saucepan, mix gelatin with broth. Let stand 1 minute. Stir over medium heat until bubbly and gelatin is completely dissolved, about 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Mix all remaining ingredients into gelatin mixture. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon, 45 to 60 minutes. Stir mixture until eggs and vegetables are mixed in evenly. Spoon into individual molds or 6-ounce custard cups. Cover with plastic wrap and chill completely, at least 2 hours.

To unmold, dip molds in about 1 inch of hot tap water 10 to 15 seconds. Invert onto serving plate.

* To hard-cook, put eggs in single layer in saucepan. Add enough tap water to come at least 1 inch above eggs. Cover and quickly bring just to boiling. Turn off heat. If necessary, remove pan from burner to prevent further boiling. Let eggs stand covered in the hot water 15 to 17 minutes for large eggs. (Adjust time up or down by about 3 minutes for each size larger or smaller.) Immediately run cold water over eggs or put them in ice water until completely cooled. To remove shell, crackle it by tapping gently all over. Roll egg between hands to loosen shell, then peel, starting at large end. Hold egg under running cold water or dip in bowl of water to help ease off shell.

Easy-to-fix Mediterranean Chicken Rice Skillet recalls the sunny flavors of Italy and Greece with economical, plentiful chicken. This flavorful skillet dinner simmers unwatched thanks to the benefits of packaged rice, a dollar-stretcher.

Budget skillet dinners

Quick rice meals stretch dollars

Food prices may have stabilized, but rising costs on fuel and other purchases are making food budget stretching a national pastime. Time also is a key element and busy homemakers are looking for quick meals providing good sources of essential nutrients. Easy skillet rice dinners that combine the protein of meat, poultry and fish with vegetables and the important carbohydrates of rice into delectable dishes are ideal.

Plentiful, dollar-stretching chicken is the starter for Mediterranean Chicken Rice Skillet.

Mediterranean Chicken Rice Skillet

1 clove garlic, sliced
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 1/2 to 3 pound chicken, cut up

2 1/4 cups water
1 cup rice
3 chicken bouillon cubes, crushed
1 teaspoon oregano
1 bay leaf
1 large tomato, cut in thin wedges
1 can (3 3/4-ounces) pitted ripe olives, drained (optional)

Lightly brown garlic in olive oil in 12-inch skillet. Add chicken pieces; brown well. Drain fat. Add water, rice, bouillon cubes, oregano and bay leaf, stir. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer until chicken is tender and liquid is absorbed, about 30 minutes. Salt to taste. Top with tomato wedges and, if desired, olives. Makes 5 servings.

Pizzaria Rice Skillet

1 can (16 ounces) stewed tomatoes
1 cup rice

1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon oregano leaves
1/3 cup Parmesan cheese, grated
1 package wieners or beef franks, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1/2 cup shredded mozzarella cheese, or to taste

Drain tomatoes, reserving juice. Add water to juice to make 2 1/2 cups liquid. Bring liquid to boil in 10-inch skillet. Stir in rice, tomatoes, salt and oregano. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes. Stir in Parmesan cheese, wieners, green pepper and seasoned salt. Heat through. Sprinkle shredded mozzarella cheese over top. Remove from heat. Let stand covered until liquid is absorbed, about 5 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Eggs en Gelee

6 servings

1 envelope unflavored gelatin

1 can (13 3/4 oz.) chicken broth

Plan ahead! Buy eggs for hard-cooking a week in advance and tuck them away in the refrigerator for a few days before cooking. Fresh - from the - store eggs may not be as easy to peel as those that are a little older. Hard-cooked eggs should be stored in the refrigerator and will keep a week after cooking.

Visit to Procida is trip back through centuries

By GINA LUBRANO
Copley News Service
PROCIDA, Italy —
Roaring Vespas and Fiats clatter over pavestone streets, the same narrow thoroughfares used by plundering pirates 400 years ago.

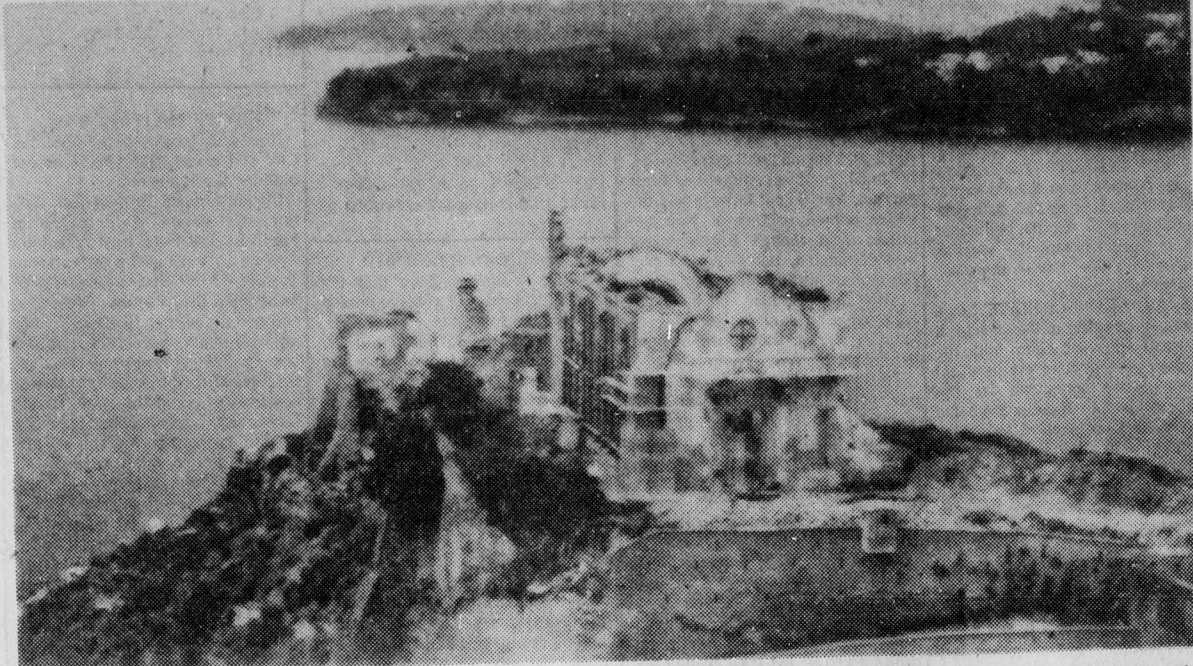

But the fierce Barbarossa had no "Senso Unico" — one-way — signs to follow. And even if he had, he surely would have ignored them with the same nonchalance that locals exhibit today.

Procida, an island in the Bay of Naples, is home to mostly peaceful fishermen and mariners, yet it has a history of strife that has become the stuff of legend.

Hundreds of years ago St. Michael the Archangel, patron saint of the island, is said to have appeared in the heavens as residents were preparing to defend themselves against an attack by pirates.

When the apparition took place, or so goes the legend, the skies filled with bolts of lightning and deafening thunder — and the pirates fled.

So grateful were the Procidians at being spared that they built a church in St. Michael's honor in a

The Church of Santa Margherita Nuova is being restored on its promontory on Isola di Procida, an island in the Bay of Naples. The island is home mostly to fishermen and mariners. Its ancient houses, built at the edge of the sea and several stories high, have withstood the centuries.

corner of the island known as "La Terra." The saint's victory over the pirates is depicted in a 1690 oil by Nicola Russo that hangs in the church along with paintings by Giordano.

But Kair - Eddin, the pirate known as Barbarossa because of his red beard, was the particular nemesis of the island. In the summer of 1544 he led a band of Turks on a rampage that left Procida in flames and families shattered.

Sailors who missed the debacle faced another peril offshore — sirens who lured them to their deaths. But they failed to ensnare the hero of a poem by Salvatore de Giacomo that has been set to music and has become a local folk song. Although the siren calls from the distant shore, he has been warned that she will try to charm him to his death.

"Fisherman" she calls to him, "do you want to exchange your oar and this little boat for a life of happiness?"

But he knows he has a saint to protect him. Santa Lucia, he replies, will send him safely on his way.

There are no pirates or sirens on the island today. The ancient homes, built at the edge of the sea and several stories high, have withstood the centuries.

Clotheslines are strung between television aerials and panties hint that most women here are as modern as their American cousins.

Some homes had television before running water. It was hauled each day from public fountains.

Summer visitors are not uncommon on the island. Most are Germans who discovered this place after vacationing at Ischia, a neighboring island that is at least 10 times the size of crab-shaped Procida, which is about two miles long and one mile wide.

One doesn't stumble onto this island as one might on the quaint villages in the mainland's mountainous north. To get to Procida, you must take a ferry from Pozzuoli or, better yet, a hydrofoil from Naples, about a half-hour away. A short trip either way, but you feel you have gone back through the centuries — until you notice the many three-wheeled taxis, scooters and cars that jam the narrow streets.

Morning comes and the bells of the island's 13 churches seem to be ringing in unison, but, of course, they are not.

A fishmonger shouts, "Ooh pesce, ooh pesce." Behind him is the baker with crusty rolls. A woman waits by her window and lowers a basket past her neighbors' balconies for his goods.

Sturdy walking shoes and agility for prerequisites for exploring this volcanic island with its breathtaking vistas.

Streets are slits between houses, and roads are often shared with donkeys. Be prepared to hug a building as buses rumble past.

Stop at a bar for refreshments — a beer, an Italian ice cream comparable to none, or a Sambuca, a strong licorice-like potion with a coffee bean floating in it, and chances are you'll spot a "partita," a noisy card game with plenty of kibitzers.

Scores of steps lead you down to the "Corricella," where a barefoot fisherman unravels a line, carefully separating tiny fish and tossing them into a wooden crate.

There's beauty in its precipitous coastline, appeal in a mysterious quality created by long, quiet summer afternoons when the islanders shutter themselves from the midday heat, and charm in the evening strolls along the marina where lovers meet in much the same way they have through the ages.

Singapore's impressions begin with aromas and large skyline

Stepping from the plane at Singapore's Paya Labar Airport is like strolling off into another world.

In fact, you're no farther away from the plane than the top of the ramp when Singapore's first landslide impression rolls over you.

It's a wave of warm air mixed with the scent of the sea — an aroma which is a constant companion on this tiny island at the southern tip of the Malay peninsula.

Even though it's one of the smallest countries in the world, Singapore far surpasses its size by just about any measurement you care to use.

Certainly, its skyline rivals any on earth because this bustling society has no place to go but up — more than 2.3 million Chinese, Malays, Indians, Pakistanis, Singaporeans and others live on this tiny 14 x 24-mile island.

President to serve 2nd term

Clarence A. Rue of Upland has been installed for a second term as president of the Ontario Barracks 2379, Veterans of World War I.

He and his corps of officers for 1980 were invested by Squire Bolton of Yucaipa, past district commander, during a recent ceremony at the Salvation Army Citadel in Ontario.

Other Uplanders installed were Wm. E. Chronister, first vice president; A. Chester Fisk, quartermaster; Howard A. Cramer, adjutant; and Walter H. Meredith, trustee.

Officers from Ontario include Ernest F. Pugh, second vice commander; William Fulton, chaplain; and Elmer F. Roden, sergeant at arms.

The Ontario Barracks was formed and charter granted on Dec. 14, 1960, with 53 charter members. Only a few of those remain living. In fact the total number of WWI veterans throughout the United States has fallen below 500,000.

New members who formerly belonged to the Chino Barracks, which disbanded, have joined the Ontario Barracks. They are: Clarence L. Cooper, L.M. Gage, Elmer Jertberg, Albert H. Keeper, Louis H. Neuser, William Roper, William Rowles and Don C. Hamilton.

It's this very mix of people which gives the city its character.

There's a Hindu temple only a few blocks from a Moslem mosque. A Buddha surrounded by hundreds of lights rests in eternal serenity, while the Gothic spire of a Church of England cathedral can be seen in the distance.

And somehow — in Singapore — it all seems to fit together.

"All the young men want to acquire three things," laughs Jean Sea Ah Jee, a Singapore Tourist Promotion Board guide.

"First, they want a car, then a wife, and finally, a flat in one of the high-rise housing developments."

Economic growth and a rising standard of living are key ingredients in Singapore's success story.

The country, which has been an independent nation since 1965, boasts the highest standard of living on the Asian mainland.

Its economic growth is second only to Japan. Possessing no natural resources of its own except its people and geographic location, the island has become a financial and industrial giant.

New fingers of land jut out along the waterfront as Singaporeans continually fill to enlarge their country.

But like everything else, the fill is imported, too. It has the third-largest oil refining center in the world as well as one of the most modern containerization terminals.

Tourism is big business, too. Some homes had television before running water. It was hauled each day from public fountains.
